

Australian Bureau of Statistics

6239.0 - Barriers and Incentives to Labour Force Participation, Australia, Jul 2008 to Jun 2009 Quality Declaration

ARCHIVED ISSUE Released at 11:30 AM (CANBERRA TIME) 08/12/2009

MEDIA RELEASE

December 8, 2009

Embargo: 11.30 am (AEDT)

94/2009

Over 400,000 women available to take up work, but not looking for work: ABS

There were 441,400 women not in the labour force who wanted a job and who were available to take up work but were not looking, according to figures released today by the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS).

Of these women, 104,700 were not looking due to caring for children. The most common reason for these women was that they preferred to look after their children (55%), followed by cost (14%) and no available childcare (12%).

There were 66,100 women who had children 2 years old or younger who were not in the labour force and who wanted work, were available to start but didn't look for work.

There were 1.1 million adult Australians who were not in the labour force, who said they wanted to work. Of these, 728,700 were available to start work, although most of these (94%) did not look for work.

Further details can be found in Barriers and Incentives to Labour Force Participation, Australia, Jul 2006 to Jun 2009 (cat. no. 6239.0).

---

This page last updated 5 December 2011

© Commonwealth of Australia

All data and other material produced by the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) constitutes Commonwealth copyright administered by the ABS. The ABS reserves the right to set out the terms and conditions for the use of such material. Unless otherwise noted, all material on this website – except the ABS logo, the Commonwealth Coat of Arms, and any material protected by a trade mark – is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 2.5 Australia licence